This imposes a responsibility on every individual to love his friends, enemies, close associates and relations.</li> <li>2. Individuals in society should be selfless and patriotic to their collective interest.</li> <li>9. We should be kind to one another. We should avoid fighting or quarrelling with those who share different religious beliefs or faith. Blessed are the peace makers for they shall be called the sons of God.</li> <li>2. We should perform our duties or responsibilities without waiting for others to instruct us. We should remember that God rewards hard work with success, wealth and eternal life.</li> <li>3. Telling lies is a sin and God his own time will punish us or we will live to bear the effects or consequences of telling lies.</li> <li>4. We should obey rules and regulations, laws, customs, traditions and norms in society. Obedience is better than sacrifice. Obeying laws in society will bring peace.</li> <li>5. We should comport ourselves in the midst of others especially strangers, visitor and close associates.</li> <li>7. We should have a sense of common belonging, loyalty, nationalism or patriotism. We should champion the interest and wellbeing of the country and the religious faith we profess. All Ghanaians should assist the state by using what we have to the benefit of others in the country.</li> <li>8. We should endeavor to follow the examples set by these religious leaders. They led their followers in humility, love, honesty, peace and respect. They were servant-leaders. For example, Jesus Christ died to liberate humanity from the yoke of sin.</li> </ol> Have learners role play applications of moral values or teachings from the religious leaders in our lives. Assessment <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1.
